

Havana ★ Cuba ★ April 2-5

call for papers

LAEMOS2014

Constructing Alternatives

How can we organize for alternative social, economic, and ecological balance?

Organizing Committee

David Arellano Gault
Centro de Investigación y
Docencia Económicas
david.arellano@cide.edu

Saulo Dubard Barbosa
EMLYON Business School
OCE Research Centre
barbosa@em-lyon.com

Leon Michael Caesarius
Uppsala University
leon.caesarius@fek.uu.se

David Courpasson
EMLYON Business School
OCE Research Centre
courpasson@em-lyon.com

Ana Díaz
Centro de Investigación y
Docencia Económicas
ana.diaz@cide.edu

Ignasi Martí
EMLYON Business School
OCE Research Centre
marti@em-lyon.com

Renate Meyer
Vienna University of Economics and Business
renate.meyer@wu.ac.at

Maria Ceci Misoczky
Federal University of Rio Grande do Sul
maria.ceci@ufrgs.br

Marjorie Morales
University de La Frontera
marjorie.morales@ufrontera.cl

Gerardo Patriotta
University of Nottingham
gerardo.patriotta@nottingham.ac.uk

Sophia Tzagaraki
Organization Studies
osofficer@gmail.com

LAEMOS

5th Latin American and European Meeting on Organization Studies, Havana, Cuba, April 2-5, 2014
www.laemos.com

Albeit having barely started, the third millennium has already challenged the ways through which organizations interact with the surrounding communities and societies. On the one hand, economic crises, regional conflicts, increasing social inequalities, climate change, and environmental-technological catastrophes (like for instance Fukushima and several oil-leaking accidents around the globe), have contributed to expose the limits and fragilities of our current models of capitalistic development. On the other hand, contemporary notions of entrepreneurship and innovation have been praised as synonymous of economic and social development, with capitalistic corporations and individualistic leaders being still depicted (maybe more than ever?) as the epitome of such type of development.

This paradoxical reality cannot be accepted with indifference, especially by European and Latin American organization scholars. Throughout their recent history, both Europe and Latin America have been faced with the dilemma of following the trend of predominant neo-liberal models of economic development or taking the daunting task of producing alternatives even when public discourse and common sense suggest that no alternative exists.

Therefore, the purpose of this 5th LAEMOS Colloquium is to share empirical and theoretical research on the dynamics of development, resistance, and innovation with the aim to promote alternative forms of organization in Latin American and European societies. Those topics are clearly inscribed in the long term EGOS and LAEMOS research agendas. Under the general theme of the meeting, the aim is to collect and connect a broad variety of studies, narratives and discourses on initiatives for alternative forms of development and innovation. We also welcome studies and reflections about the redefinition of boundaries, collaboration, and conflict among government, business, and civil society, in shaping social change, organizational (re-)configuration, and developmental action.

We seek contributions of high quality academic work within the field of organizational studies and related areas of research from European and Latin American countries. In particular, this is a Call for Papers for the following prospective sub-themes (but not limited to them):

- The corporatization of politics and the politicization of corporations
- The political economy of organizations
- Sustainable and unsustainable tales of sustainability and social development
- Alternative roles and forms of managerial action
- Alternative spaces: communities, cities as models of collective agency
- Transnational networks for protest and for change
- Digital worlds, online forms of organization and action

Papers taking an interdisciplinary perspective on dynamics of change, innovation, power and resistance are particularly encouraged. Theoretical and empirical papers looking at alternative forms of social, economic, and ecological development from an organizational perspective are also of special interest. They may include studies that link micro level case analysis to macro level institutional and global forces, that investigate processes as well as structures, and that take a historical and contextual approach.

Deadlines:

Subtheme Proposal: July 31, 2013

Abstract submission (1,000 words): 15 November, 2013

Notification of acceptance: 15 December, 2013

Submission of full paper (6,000 words): 5 March, 2014

You are welcome to submit a subtheme proposal at laemos2014@gmail.com. For more information about the conference and frequent updates please check www.laemos.com.